PECAN TREES

Our pecan trees are grown on selected root-stocks. We have tried many different kinds of pecans for seed-stock and found Riverside surpasses all others.

We shipped some of these seed to D. F. Stahmann, owner of STAHMANN FARMS, one of the world's largest pecan orchard of some 5000 acres. He says: "Riverside best pecan for root-stock ever found."

We have been using this variety for root-stock for many years.

VARIETIES: Burkett, Western Schley, Mahan, San Saba Improved, Squirrel's Delight, Riverside, Delmas, Desirable, Eastern Schley or Schley, Stuart, and Success.

DESCRIPTION

BURKETT: One of the most popular of the Western varieties. Large, round, and thin-shelled. We have never grown enough of these trees.

WESTERN SCHLEY: Long, very thin shelled nut of excellent quality; a good cracker. Trees bear early and are prolific. Produces lots of blooms and pollen. Resistant to scab and rosette.

MAHAN: World's largest pecan. The nuts are very large, almost three inches in length. Nuts are thin-shelled and have a good flavor. Very well adapted to all sections. It bears young and makes a beautiful shade.

SAN SABA IMPROVED: Very high quality, medium sized, thin shelled nut. Excellent sheller. Fast becoming a leader in Western sections. Trees are inclined to be droopy at first but make a beautiful tree as they grow older.

SQUIRREL'S DELIGHT: Here is a good sized nut with medium soft shell. Very early and prolific bearer. Often bears second season in nursery row.

RIVERSIDE: Large, oblong nut. Good quality with medium soft shell. The tree is one of the most thrifty growers we have. A very early and heavy bearer. This is the nut we plant and bud on. It has proved to be an excellent grower.

DELMAS: One of the best varieties for shade. The large green leaves will attract admiring attention. Tree is an upright grower and a good bearer. Nuts are large and oblong in shape with a soft shell.

DESIRABLE: One of the newer Eastern varieties. Tree is a vigorous grower, very resistant to disease. Good sized, soft-shelled nuts. Very prolific.

EASTERN SCHLEY or SCHLEY: A long, very thin shelled nut. Excellent quality. You won't go wrong when you recommend Schley. Makes a beautiful, upright shade tree.

STUART: Large, medium soft shelled nut. Stuart comes nearer to being well adapted to all sections of the country and to all types of soil than any other pecan tree. It is a good producer and makes a beautiful shade. Very resistant to all pecan diseases.

SUCCESS: One of the most popular of the Eastern varieties. Tree is very resistant to scab and is a vigorous grower, making a beautiful shade. The nuts are large and plump, inclined to be round.
